UTAH—Fair Sunday and Monday.

W. C. T. U. FROWNS ON SCANT DRAPERIES.

The display in the dooryard of a fine residence in Washington, of a statue of a young woman attired only in "the altogether," had its echo in a convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the capital city shortly after. Mrs. S. M. Wescott, in making the annual report of the work of the department of purity, referred in caustic terms to this statue.

The society long ago went on record against the display of nude pictures and statuary as well as human figures that are only scantily draped. Some of the members argue that, following along this same line, they should now make war on the prevailing women's fashions in gowns, which, as all admit, are deliberately designed in order to emphasize and make conspicuous the lines of the female form.

In the category of condemnation would also come the advertisements of corsets, underwear and other articles of feminine make-up, which are published so seductively and unblushingly by all the so-called best periodicals in the country. If an idealized marble statue is impure, they say, what term shall be applied to the present styles of dress, as exhibited publicly everywhere. The opinion prevails, however, that it would not do to attack the fashions, as they are altogether too firmly entrenched in feminine favor.—News Item.

Hear again the same old question; hear the same old row:
What is modest? What is seemly? When and where, or how?
Must a statue of a Venus wear a robe de nuit,
Or may marble limbs be flaunted, happy, careless, free?
May a maiden in a painting, unembarrassed, look
At her disrobed figure mirrored in a woodland brook?
May the Turkish lady, bathing in her Turkish style,
Cast aside her Turkish towels, wearing nothing but a smile?
May the nymph in Nature's garbing, gambol by a stream,
Or must she gaze forth in future from behind a painted screen?

THE FRANKING GRAFT.

If congress accepts the advice that is offered by Postmaster-General Hitchcock, it will abolish the franking privilege. On the pretense of circulating parts of the Congressional Record, political committees have escaped payment of postage bills. Every year tons and tons of campaign literature go out from Washington with a congressman's name stamped on the package by some clerk. Members, as a matter of course, lend the use of their names. It is graft that contributes in no small degree to the postal deficit.

But although the matter is thus plain, it is a safe guess that much prodding will be necessary to induce congress to attack the abuse. It is a great saving to the political committees, and political committees are finding it increasingly difficult to raise money for campaign purpose.

TROPICAL IMPORTS.

More than one-third of the merchandise entering the United States last year was of tropical production, says the National Farmer. With the growing demand of our manufacturers for tropical products for use in the great industries and the increasing requirements of our population for foodstuffs produced only in tropical and sub-tropical climates, the dependence of the United States upon the tropics steadily increases.

Tropical and sub-tropical products brought into continental United States in the fiscal year 1910 aggregated 636 million dollars in value, against 335 million in 1900, 298 million in 1890, and 242 million in 1880. The share which tropical and sub-tropical products formed of the merchandise entering the United States last year was 40 per cent.

Nearly 100 million dollars' worth of the tropical and sub-tropical merchandise entering continental United States last year came from our own islands. The total value of merchandise brought from those islands in the fiscal year 1910 was 96 million dollars, practically all of which was, of course, of tropical production, leaving about 540 million dollars' worth of tropical material drawn from foreign countries. In 1900 the value of merchandise drawn from tropical islands under the United States flag was but 30 million dollars, the contributions of our own tropical area to the tropical requirements of the United States having thus trebled in the last decade.

HE WAS A PIONEER.

The telegraph conveys the message that H. M. Yerington of Carson, Nevada, is dead, at the age of 82. He was one of the builders of the Virginia & Truckee railroad and the Carson & Colorado railroad and for years was a masterful force in the affairs of Nevada.

Yerington was one of the few men of wealth who remained loyal to his state to the extent of living and investing in Nevada. He was, at one time, a powerful factor in the politics of his state and perhaps was highly instrumental in electing more governors and United States senators than any other man, with the possible exception of Tom Platt.

Yerington's pride was centered in the Virginia & Truckee railroad, a short stretch of road extending from Reno to the mines of the famous Comstock. At one time the 52 miles of track did more busness than any equal piece of road in the United States, operating a train for every mile of rail.

In Yerington's death Nevada loses another of the dwindling number of pioneers who made the Battleborn state famous. Soon the last of these stalwarts, not only of Nevada, but of Utah and other western states, shall have left us, and the world of tomorrow will be poorer because of their absence.

WEBER CLUB COMMITTEE.

The Weber club, in its investigation of coal prices and in tracing the cause of the present exorbitant charges for fuel, should proceed entirely independent of the proposed investigation in Salt Lake, because there is evidence that the Salt Lake Herald's loud sounding fight is not intended to be pushed to a final conclusion, but has for its object politics, profit and power.

The committee named by the club is an excellent one. The men are reliable and they are capable of probing to the bottom for facts. They should start with the local dealers and go on through to the mines, demanding to know why coal is selling in Ogden as high as $6.50 a ton.

The miners, the mine operators, the railroads and the local coal dealers should be given an opportunity to explain. After those explanations have been obtained, then the Weber club should be in a position to fix responsibility for the advance in the price of coal from $4.50 a few years ago to $6.50 today.

With the legislature about to convene, this is an excellent time to inquire into the coal problem and then appeal to the legislature for relief.

JUST BEFORE SPRING.

"I dread the thought of the winter coming on, with its dark days," said one of two men at a lunch counter.

"Well," said the other, "winter's coming is the advent of spring, and I make myself think of the balmy days just ahead, rather than dwell on the storms of today. You see, it is the point of view. After every storm, the clouds roll away and there is sunshine. So with the seasons. Following the stormy period, there must be an enjoyable contrast, in fact these contrasts make our spring time and our summer days and our fall season so delightful. If all were endless summer, we would weary of the monotony."

"People who live in southern and central California enjoy nothing so much as a snow storm, and those who have lived in colder climates long for the invigorating, bracing air of a winter day when mercury hangs close to the zero point."

For health and happiness, there is nothing better than the stimulating effect of the winters in Utah, where the cold is not too penetrating to make outdoor life other than enjoyable and where, after a few weeks of snow, the sensation of returning spring animates and rejuvenates.

WILL MEET IN MOBILE.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 25.—The next annual convention of the National Educational Association will meet in Mobile, Ala., on Feb. 23, 24 and 25, 1911.

Legal Profundity.

A newly made magistrate was gravely absorbed in a formidable document of superintendents of the National Educational Association will meet in Mobile, Ala., on Feb. 23, 24 and 25, 1911.

"Officer, what is this man charged with?"
"Bigotry, your worship. He's got three wives," replied the official.
The new justice rested his elbows on the desk and placed his finger tips together. "Officer," he said, somewhat sternly, "what's the use of all this education, all these evening schools, all the technical classes and what not? Please remember, in any future case, that a man who has married three wives has not committed bigamy, but trigamy. Proceed."—Lincoln State Journal.

Not Yet Ripe.

The Fair Purchase—Your eggs are all very small today, Mr. Jones.
Mr. Jones—Yes'm, they are; but I'm sure I don't know the reason.

The Fair Purchase—Oh, I expect you took them out of the nests too soon.—Sketch.

Disqualified.

"Very few photographers seem to enjoy having their own pictures taken," said the observer of human nature.

"That's true," replied the artist.
"When a photographer gets through with all his exacting customers there's no use of telling him to assume an easy attitude and look pleasant."—Washington Star.

Costly Talent.

"You are sure that airships will make war so expensive that it is utterly impractical?" said the military expert.

"Quite sure," replied the other.
"The flying machines won't cost so much, but we won't be able to pay the sums required by aviators for going up in them."—Washington Star.

Cause of His Demise.

Watkins—Didn't you say your father was an inventor?
Tompkins—Yes; he made a specialty of inventing safety devices.

Watkins—Is he still living?
Tompkins—No; he invented and demonstrated a safety folding bed.—Chicago News.

An Observation.

"What says the voice of the people?" inquired the oracular alarmist.
"My personal observation," replied Senator Sorghum, "is that the voice of the people is, as a rule, too closely occupied in giving three cheers for somebody to articulate anything very distinctly."

A Busy Somnambulist.

"Who is that man talking so loudly out on the hall escape?" asked the belated citizen.
"Hush!" said the policeman. "He is a great statesman who walks in his sleep. He thinks he is on the rear platform of a railway train."—Washington Star.

Unregenerate.

"It was to satisfy your extravagant tastes," cried the desperate man, "that I committed the forgery. The crime is upon your head."

Well Provided For.

Professor—You ought not to let your son ride away his precious youth. You should prepare him to carve his name in the hall of fame.

Rich Mother—Pooh pooh!

In our position we can afford to hire a sculptor to do that for him.—Detroit Times.

Tommy's Surmise.

Mr. Baldy—Yes, Tommy, even the hairs of our heads are numbered.

Tommy, glancing at his father's intellectual dome—Don't take much fingerin' to get your number, does it, pa?—Harper's Weekly.

A Bad Combination.
"What's the matter with my speeches?" inquired the orator.
"The seasoning is wrong," replied the old campaigner. "You try to put so much ginger in them that they have to be taken with a grain of salt."—Washington Star.

ENGINEERS PAY VISIT TO OGDEN

Fifty members of the Utah Society of Engineers, among whom were some of the most prominent electrical men of the state, visited Ogden yesterday on a junket, which was arranged by the society. The trip included a ride over the longest electrical route in the intermountain country, the party traveling from Salt Lake City to Ogden on the Baileys line, and from Ogden to Brigham over the lines of the Ogden Rapid Transit company.

The party left Salt Lake City at 9 o'clock and, including a short stop at Lagoon, reached Ogden at 10 o'clock. They were met at the Baileys depot by Joseph Bailey, manager of the Rapid Transit company, who had a special car in waiting. On this car a trip to the Ogden Canyon power plant of the Utah Light & Railway company was made. The visit to this plant was a most interesting one. Power equal to 4,000 horsepower is generated from the canyon waters. The plant has a capacity of 5,000 kilowatts. The power is generated by Pelton wheels, two of which are in operation during the day and four at night, when the demand upon the plant is greatly increased by the power used for lighting. The plant is in charge of Frank Carr, who was careful to see that the visitors were shown every possible courtesy.

From the power plant the party returned to their special car and a trip was made up the canyon. The excursionists were returned to the city in time to enjoy an elaborate luncheon at the noon hour in the rooms of the Weber club.

In the afternoon the trip to Brigham was made. A short stop was made at Willard and the power plant at that point was inspected.

The engineers arrived in Ogden on the return trip late in the afternoon and reached Salt Lake City about 6:30 last evening.

STRATFORD AND BREWER NAMED

In relation to the matter of appointing jury commissioners for the year 1911, Judge Howell yesterday made the following order:

"It is hereby ordered that Messrs. Alexander L. Brewer and Frank W. Stratford be, and they are hereby, appointed for the next calendar year jury commissioners, they being voters of this county and well known to be of opposing political parties and of good character for morality, intelligence and integrity."

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child—the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures bedwetting and people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

HAD TO CLIMB STEPS TO SKYSCRAPER FIRE

New York, Nov. 26.—The failure of the elevator machinery in a 16-story loft building in West Twenty-fifth street, early today, forced a squad of firemen to climb fifteen long flights of winding stairs to reach a fire which had started in a store room full of spooled embroidery silks. The delay incident to the watchman's attempt to carry the firemen aloft in the elevator gave the fire a good start.

The Adventures OF HERCULES

ADVENTURE NO. 5
CAPTURE OF THE MONSTER OXEN OF GERON.

Another task enjoined upon him was to bring to Eurystheus the oxen of Geryon, a monster with three bodies, who dwelt in the island Erythra (the red) so called because it lay at the west, under the rays of the setting sun. The description is thought to apply to Spain, of which Geryon was king. After traversing various countries, Hercules reached at length the frontiers of Libya and Europe, where he raised the two mountains, being called the pillars of Hercules. The oxen were guarded by the giant Eurytion and his two-headed dog, but Hercules killed the giant and his dog, and brought away the oxen in safety to Eurystheus.

The next story of Hercules will be published next Saturday and Sunday. Boys and girls all over town are getting ready to bring the nine adventures of our shoe store first. The boy or girl who succeeds gets a pair of our solid leather "Hercules" shoes free.
